HOOVER VETO IS DEFEATED

CONGRESS DEFEATS PRESIDENT IN VOTE FAVORING PENSION

Huge Majority For Bill
Polled In Both Houses

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Thousands of Spanish American War veterans were assured of pensions today after congress administered a crushing defeat to President Hoover in enacting into law the $11,500,000 Spanish American War pension bill.

House and senate combined to pile up a 359-to-32 vote against Mr. Hoover's veto of the bill, the senate voting 61 to 18 and the house 298 to 14 for enactment, "the president's wishes to the contrary notwithstanding."

Mr. Hoover objected to the measure on the ground it established a "new basis" for pensioning, because it included men disabled by "vicious habits," reduced to seventy days the required term of service for pensioning and allowed pensions without proof of need.

His defeat cut short a last effort to stem the tide against him. Early in the day a compromise bill was submitted to the president and approved, but congress leaders rejected the plan to have it voted on prior to the veto vote. An effort to postpone action on the veto in the house until Thursday, too, was defeated, by a 233 to 65 vote.

It was the first of President Hoover's vetoes to be overridden. The house sustained his objections to a minor bill, providing for a memorial coin.

Congressional records showed today's majority the heaviest piled up against a presidential veto in the last quarter of a century. President Hoover didn't get the support of a single Democrat among those who supported him, but lost scores of Republicans in the pension fight. Representatives Garner of Texas, Democrat floor leader of the house, and Gage of South Carolina, ranking Democrat on the house pension committee, led the fight against the measure. The president, while Senators Connally (D) of Texas and Robison (R) of Kentucky led the opposition in the senate.

Connally and Garner urged the senate to override the president's veto and before the debate was concluded were joined by Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, and others. The resulting vote, 61 to 18, was eight votes more than were necessary to override the veto.

POSSES SHOOT EACH OTHER IN BANDIT CHASE

Suspect Confesses Part In Michigan Bank Robbery

MANCELONA, Mich., June 3.—A complete confession has been obtained from a suspect in the Antrim County Savings Bank robbery at Mancelona yesterday and the identity of the other bandits is known, Lieutenant Earl Hathaway of the State Police announced today.

Dr. John Gerver, of Bellaire who was shot by Dr. F. G. Rosenberg of Alba when one group of posses mistook another group for the bandits, is in Lockwood Hospital in Petoskey, where he may die.

After robbing the bank yesterday of $3,000, the five armed bandits were pursued by Dr. Rosenberg. Herbert Sullivan, standing on the running board of the doctor's car, exchanged shots and was wounded.

Rosenburg and other members of the pursuing posse drove on to the Henry Lindner farmhouse just as Doctor Gerver and his son were entering the yard. Gerver, believing the approaching men were the bandits, opened fire. Doctor Rosenberg opened up with a rifle and shot Doctor Gerver through the neck. Rosenberg said he didn't know the men were Doctor Gerver and his son.

GIRL KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

POMEROY, O., June 3.—Edith Bowen, aged 25, who was employed in a Columbus store, and who had been visiting her mother's home at Harrisonville, near here, was instantly killed last night in an automobile accident, according to a police report here today.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Edith Bowen, was seriously, but not fatally hurt in the same accident, which occurred when the girl's automobile failed to negotiate a turn on a road.

PROHIBITION BILL FOR COURT REFORM REPORTED TO HOUSE

Stubborn Minority Opposes Plan of Commission

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The house was plunged into another prohibition row today when the judiciary committee called for passage of a modified court reform program of the Wickersham law enforcement commission, involving the so-called "juryless trial" scheme of speeding dry law cases.

Despite the modification made by the majority of the judiciary committee, a stubborn minority of five members was leading a fight against the commission's program as an invasion of rights guaranteed under the constitution.

The bills were brought to the floor of the house only after a better fight in committee, in which President Hoover's special message demanding action on the law enforcement program, played its part.

The bills up for action include: Amendment of Jones "five and ten" law, to establish a class of petty violations of prohibition law punishable by a maximum imprisonment of six months and fine of $500. Present maximum is five years imprisonment and $10,000 fine.

Hearing on petty violations before U. S. commissioners. If the accused pleads guilty, commissioner sends record to federal judge for sentence.

If he pleads not guilty, hearing is held, and the commissioner sends report to judge who acts on them. If the commission so recommends, an important change to demand jury trial.

Permitting petty offenses to be prosecuted on information rather than grand jury indictment.

Bill permitting waiver of jury trials in criminal cases.

While the bills as reported to the house included the essential features of the so-called "juryless trial" scheme, an important change was made by the house committee.

In the original Wickersham commission bill the district attorney was given a "club," the bill providing if an accused liquor law violator failed to accept the non-jury verdict for a petty violation, he could be indicted under the Jones act for a felony. The provision, it was frankly admitted, was to force acceptance of U. S. commissioner verdicts.

KING UNABLE TO ATTEND RITES

LONDON, June 3.—With King George absent for the second year in succession, the colorful ceremony of the trooping of the color was held today in honor of his majesty's sixty-fifth birthday. An attack of rheumatism prevented the king from attending this year, and in 1929 he was still convalescing from the grave illness which nearly cost him his life.

The Prince of Wales, heir apparent to the throne, deputized for his father. Thousands of people, including many American and foreign visitors, packed the parade to witness the spectacle.

The prince was accompanied by his brothers, the Duke of York and the Duke of Gloucester. From a balcony overlooking the parade, Queen Mary, her daughter, Princess Mary, Prince George, the Duke of Connaught and Princess Elizabeth, 4-year-old daughter of the Duchess of York, watched the ceremony.

CAMPAIGN EXPENSES ARE SCRUTINIZED BY SENATE COMMITTEE

DIRIGIBLE MAKING SPEED ON HOMEWARD JOURNEY IS REPORT

Leaves Lakehurst With out Event On Flight
East

NEW YORK, June 3.—Making fast time on its return trip to Friedrichshafen, Germany, the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin had covered approximately 1,900 miles of the long journey from Lakehurst, N. J., at 10 a. m. today (Eastern Daylight Saving Time), according to a wireless message from the ship received by the Hamburg American line here.

At that hour, the Graf's position was 49.18 north latitude, 57.30 west longitude. This position was almost due east of New York.

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., June 3.—Carrying twenty-two passengers and a crew of forty-four, the Graf Zeppelin streaked over the north Atlantic ocean today toward Seville, Spain, on the final stretch of her homeward journey to Friedrichshafen, Germany.

The Graf, favored by a strong tail wind was due to arrive in Seville late Wednesday night. Just before the takeoff from Lakehurst at 10:12 last night, Commander Hugo Eckener estimated that the Graf Zeppelin would reach Seville in fifty hours. A two-hour stop will be made at Seville where eight passengers and a quantity of mail will be discharged and then the giant dirigible will start a twenty-hour trip to the home port at Friedrichshafen.

Three continents have been linked by the Graf in the present flight, Europe, South America and the United States. The Graf left Friedrichshafen on Sunday, May 18, proceeding from that city to Seville, thence to Pernambuco, Brazil, down to Rio de Janeiro, back to Pernambuco and thence to Lakehurst. The trip from here to Seville is 5100 nautical miles or 5,800 statute miles.

Cheers went up from 1,000 spectators as the Graf, her silvery flanks glistening the rays of a quarter moon, soared majestically into the star-studded night and turned her blunt nose toward New York City over which she passed about half an hour later. The big ship sped onward in a northeasterly direction before finally passing out to sea.

The getaway from Lakehurst was accomplished smoothly and without incident. There was a waving of handkerchiefs and hats from the brightly lit cabin of the dirigible as the airliner departed and vociferous cheering from the spectators who stood massed behind ropes on the field surrounding the hangar.

Commander Eckener and the Graf Zeppelin will not be seen in the United States again for a considerable period. The Graf has a busy summer schedule ahead including three flights to the Arctic Circle and trips to almost every part of Europe but no further journeys to the United States are contemplated. Just before leaving, Eckener smilingly remarked he did not want to "abuse" the hospitality of the United States.

POLICEMAN BEATEN EFFECTING ARREST

CLEVELAND, June 3.—George Miskulin, 31, former amateur boxer, is being held by police here today in connection with an alleged attack upon Patrolman Walter Zea, 30, late yesterday.

Miskulin is alleged to have beaten the officer when Zea attempted to take him into custody for questioning in connection with illegal operations performed on two young girls who are now under treatment in a local hospital.

The patrolman is in Charity Hospital with a broken nose, broken cheek bone, contusions of the scalp and a possible fracture of the skull.

Zea said that when he informed Miskulin that he was wanted at police headquarters for questioning the former boxer kicked him in the stomach, knocking him down. In the fight which followed Zea was knocked almost unconscious.

He recovered sufficiently, however, to arrest the man and take him to the police station single-handed.

Condemnation Seen; Davis Alarmed By Revelations

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Large primary campaign expenditures in Pennsylvania and Illinois are going to come in for severe condemnation at the hands of the senate committee which is keeping a close tab on the totals.

Whether this condemnation will be followed by punitive action to deny seats to the winners in the November elections cannot yet be foretold. There is undeniably a disposition on the part of some members of the senate to apply the Truman H. Newberry yardstick of $191,000 to the winners of this year's contests, and deny seats to those successful candidates who spent more than that figure. Opinion, however, has not yet crystallized in the senate.

In the Pennsylvania primary, it is now revealed that some $362,268 was spent on behalf of the ticket headed by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, the senatorial nominee, and Francis S. Brown, who lost the gubernatorial nomination, with a part of the state yet to be accounted for.

This is almost twice the famous figure of $191,000 spent by Newberry, which the senate denounced, and which ultimately led to Newberry's resignation. It is about half what William S. Vare spent four years ago to get the Republican senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, only to be denied his seat when elected on the ground of excessive expenditure.

In Illinois, Ruth Hanna McCormick has admitted spending $252,000 of her own funds to obtain the nomination, which also is in excess of the Newberry figure of $191,000.

Secretary Davis, who has confidently looked forward to taking his seat in the senate, the nomination being regarded as equivalent to election in Pennsylvania, is deeply perturbed over the revelation that $268,000 was spent in behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket.

Within a few hours after the Pennsylvania treasurers had reported the figures to the Nye investigating committee, Secretary Davis hastened to the capitol to make a second appearance before the cynical members and assure them that further investigation would disclose that most of the money was spent for the Brown half of the ticket "and very little for me."

In substantiation, Davis pointed out that the Mellons of Pittsburgh contributed $15,000 to the Davis-Brown ticket, although supporting Joseph R. Grundy for the senate.

The Davis-Brown treasurer, however, reported that notwithstanding this the Mellon checks went into the "general pot" for the whole ticket.

Secretary Davis even argued with the committee that the $368,000 should be divided by seven, as there were seven candidates on the Davis-Brown ticket. Members of the committee only smiled and said nothing.

The three-cornered New Jersey primary, where Dwight W. Morrow, Jos. S. Frelinghuysen and Franklin W. Fort are contesting for the Republican senatorial nomination, is next in line for investigation. The primary is two weeks from today. As soon as it is concluded, the principals will be called to Washington for questioning.

Field agents of the committee are already making quiet surveys in New Jersey.

TEACHER ACCUSED

COLUMBUS, O., June 3.—I. H. Cammarn, 27-year-old physical education director at Roosevelt Junior High School here, will be given a hearing June 12 on an assault and battery charge, which was filed by the mother of a pupil whom he is alleged to have slapped. The pupil is Clifford Shields, aged 15.

When the commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage suggested a change in the Presbyterian marriage code which read,

GANGLAND VICTIMS AND SCENE OF SLAYINGS

Chicago's worst gangland flare-up, since the 1929 St. Valentine's Day massacre, took the lives of three underworld characters and probably fatally wounded another and his woman companion as they sat at dinner in a summer hotel at Fox Lake, Ill., a suburb. A machine gun squad did the work. The victims, affiliated with the Al Capone interests, are believed to have encroached on the north side alcohol territory of the Bugs Moran gang recently. Above,

HOUSE POSITION ON TARIFF IS CAUSING ALARM IN CAPITAL

Administration Is Worried; Garner Plans Fight

WASHINGTON, June 3.—While professing confidence in their program for enacting the tariff bill by June 16, administration leaders on Capitol Hill were plainly worried today over signs of revolt of both house and senate.

The usually pliable house, which has been whipped into lines times immemorial for administration measures, has shown signs of growing opposition. In the senate, leaders of the Democratic insurgent coalition declared the vote on the bill would be close and saw a possibility, the measure might be rejected.

The sign of trouble in the house gave the administration chiefs worried moments. Although the archaic house rules give a few leaders tremendous power, the administration must command a majority vote at all times to enforce its programs. There was just a hint in the air that the usual majority might disappear when the tariff bill gets to the lower branch of congress.

Representative "Jack" Garner, the fast-thinking Democratic floor leader, will lead the fight in the house against the bill. It was reported Garner planned to force a series of record votes on various items in the bill, by the simple expedient of proposing to issue new instructions to the house conferees.

Under existing rules, Garner can make these motions undisturbed and each will require a record roll-call. If administration leaders fail to command a majority on any of these votes, the tariff would be again returned to conference.

For some reason, the Republican chiefs were more alarmed over the house situation than over the senate outlook. Senator Watson (R) of Indiana, majority leader in the senate, continued to predict passage of the bill by June 16. This included passage of the bill by the senate within the next ten days and by the house a day or two later.

OPEN PLANE SERVICE

WASHINGTON, June 3.—A new hourly airplane service between Washington and New York will be inaugurated August 15, it was announced today. There will be a stopover at Philadelphia. The Newark Airport, N. J., will be the northern terminus and the Washington Airport the southern terminus.

PRESBYTERIANS SCORN MARRIAGE LAW REFORM

CINCINNATI, O., June 3.—A modernist movement in the Presbyterian church to allow members of that denomination to marry Catholics and persons of other Christian creeds today had been forestalled, the one hundred and forty-second general assembly of the Presbyterians having refused to adopt a recommendation which would have allowed such intermarriages.

When the commission on marriage, divorce and remarriage suggested a change in the Presbyterian marriage code which read,

KILLS SWEETHEART AS AUTO SALESMAN LOOKS ON, THEN FLEES IN CAR

MRS. DECHOW TARGET OF GUN

Shots Fired Into Bed; Woman Safe

CHICAGO, June 3.—A mysterious assailant today attempted to kill Mrs. Lottie Brenner Dechow by placing a gun against her bedroom window and firing two shots into her bed. Mrs. Dechow was recently robbed of $50,000 in jewelry, the robbery disclosing that hea youthful husband, the self-styled "Count Von Buelow," was Henry Dechow, a German adventurer.

The assassin had climbed to the roof of her palatial home and had taken careful aim at the bed. Both bullets pierced the coverlet, but Mrs. Dechow had risen five minutes before to console her sister, whose husband died Saturday.

Mrs. Dechow is the heiress to a large fortune which was left her by the late Nate Brenner. Mrs. Dechow had recently sought a warrant for the arrest of her present husband, charging him with false swearing in procuring a marriage license.

POLICE HEAD SLAIN IN RAID ATTEMPT

ABSECON, N. J., June 3.—Chief of Police William M. Schoephein, 41, was shot and killed here early today as he attempted to enter a house said to have formerly been a speakeasy.

George Howard Much, 31-year-old Atlantic City hauling contractor, surrendered shortly afterwards and admitted the slaying. Abscon officials said Much's companions, Dorothy Corbeau, 30, Mary Brown, 22, and Richard Powell, 22, all of Atlantic City, were held as material witnesses.

Believing the police chief a bandit Much said he fired at him twice when Schoephein attempted to force his way into the house.

Ironton Man Object Of Search After Road- side Murder

IRONTON, O., June 3.—Police of all Ohio cities today are searching for Leroy Duty, 38, who allegedly took his 36-year-old sweetheart, Miss Mildred Vance, "for a ride," last night, and while a witness looked on, pumped five bullets into her body.

Duty, saying that he contemplated the purchase of a new automobile, had Orlyn Jordan, a demonstrator for a local agency to call and take him for a trial run.

The man asked Jordan to stop for Miss Vance, whom, Duty then said, was his wife. The woman was picked up at her southside home.

Duty then took the wheel of the new automobile and drove two miles into the country and stopped. Before Jordan said he could interfere, he fired five shots into the woman's body, according to the car agent.

Jordan stated that he was then forced from the machine at the point of a revolver and that Duty drove away with the woman's body slumped at his side.

A police alarm was spread and early today Miss Vance's lifeless body was found in a roadside ditch five miles beyond the scene of the shooting. The body was in a sitting position, indicating, police said that the alleged slayer had apparently carefully lifted the body from the automobile and had not thrown it from the machine.

An all-night search failed to find any trace of the fugitive, who was traveling in a high-powered sedan, which is owned by the local automobile agency. The murder was committed on Deering pike, which connects with main highways to Cincinnati and cities up the Ohio River from here.

BELIEVE ANOTHER TAKEN FOR "RIDE"

CHICAGO, June 3.—Authorities today combed the north side beer domain of George "Bugs" Moran in search of the body of another supposed "ride" victim after a fusillade of twelve shots was heard in an alley in the rear of the Belmont Hotel.

Two men heard the shots, saw the flashes of revolvers. Immediately afterward an automobile raced past a traffic policeman who said he saw the form of a man, minus hat and coat, slumped beside the driver.

Police believe this is the seventh man to be slain in the new outbreak of warfare between the Moran and "Scarface" Al Capone gangs.

CRAZED INMATES OF HOSPITAL ARMED IN BREAK FOR FREEDOM

Kidnap Officials; Posses Scouring Country Side

IONIA, Mich., June 3.—Eleven criminally-insane prisoners—five of them slayers—escaped today from the State Hospital for the Criminally Insane here. All are armed with knives and razors. Thirteen prisoners made the dash for freedom at first, but two were recaptured shortly afterward.

The men escaped when they threatened to kill the night superintendent of the hospital, Eugene Owen, whom they had captured.

They disappeared and no trace of the eleven convicts has been found despite a wide search by hospital and reformatory authorities.

State police, sheriffs deputies, village police and posses of citizens have joined the search. The whole countryside is in arms.

The prisoners, confined in a dormitory block in No. 3 building, displayed cunning in their escape. One called to the two night guards patrolling the building:

"Some of the fellows in here are saving away the bars. You better come in and stop them."

U. S. Davis and Bert Hall, the guards, summoned Owen, as there is a hospital regulation forbidding guards to enter a dormitory block without authority of a hospital official.

Owen came running to the building. He and two guards unlocked the dormitory block and entered.

They were immediately overpowered by the thirteen madmen. The keys were taken from Davis and Hall and the prisoners locked them in the dormitory.

Then the prisoners unlocked the doors of four other dormitory blocks in the same building, containing 131 inmates. These, too, could have escaped, but they showed no such desire.

Taking Owen along as hostage, the thirteen prisoners rushed to the main gate of the hospital, pausing to cut all telephone wires leading from the institution.

At the gate two of the prisoners held razors against Owen's throat. They told the guard on duty there to unlock the gate or they would kill the night superintendent.

The gate was opened. They left Owen behind and fled into the darkness outside the walls.

Because of the ruined telephone wires, Dr. P. C. Robertson, superintendent of the hospital, was delayed in sounding the alarm. He ordered all available guards out to start the search immediately, and dispatched a messenger to Sheriff William Franch.

Franch ordered all his deputies to start the search and notified the state reformatories and local police post in East Lansing. Police in all surrounding towns likewise were notified.

In less than an hour more than 100 men were combing the countryside.

Doctor Robertson was surprised that none of the 131 other prisoners in No. 3 building attempted to escape. While inspecting the building after the break he asked one why he hadn't fled.

"I'm afraid of those guys. I don't know what they would do with me if they got hold of me."

THREE KILLED BY EXPLOSION

TAMAQUA, Pa., June 3.—Three men were killed at Webster near here this morning when an explosion wrecked the gelatin mix plant of the Atlas Powder Co.

The dead were: George Stamm, of New Ringgold; Irvin Miller, West Penn Twp.; Elmer Hill, Reynolds.

Normally there are only three men at work in the gelatin house, located on the side of a mountain a safe distance from the other buildings. Officials believed no other persons were injured.

PRINCE CAROL IS RECONCILED

BUCHAREST, June 3.—Newspapers here today claimed that the former Crown Prince Carol has perfected a reconciliation with Princess Helen, his divorced wife and mother of their son, King Michael.

Carol, the newspapers predicted, is due back in Rumania within a month.

On June 1, Carol was separated from Mme. Lupescu for whom he renounced the throne in 1925, according to the newspapers. Carol has been in exile since then, chiefly in France.

PLANS BEING COMPLETED FOR AIR CARNIVAL AT FAIRFIELD

One of the greatest aerial demonstrations ever staged in the Miami Valley, will take place the afternoon and evening of Saturday June 7 at the Fairfield Air Depot, Fairfield.

Millions of dollars worth of experimental engines and airplanes from Wright Field and the Fairfield depot will be concentrated on this date and elaborate preparations have been made to handle the large crowds expected to witness the air carnival.

The afternoon program from 2 until 4 o'clock will include a thrilling pursuit race, in which a dozen fast planes will compete on a closed course. On the heels of the pursuit race will follow aerial combats, the bursting of small balloons, parachute jumps, a demonstration of target gliders released from airplanes, formation flying, the attack and destruction of captive balloons, bombing of a fortress, and the laying of a graceful smoke screen.

From 4 o'clock until darkness settles over the field, various miscellaneous exhibitions of flying will take place. Passengers will be carried at reasonable rates and there will be rides available in the flight tutor in which the passenger gets all the thrills of flying without ever being more than ten feet off the ground.

As soon as it is sufficiently dark, an exhibition of flares and aerial bombs will be staged. Flares, the type used by pilots to illuminate the countryside when making a landing away from a lighted airport, produce a weird and uncanny effect. An example of making night aerial photographs (made famous by Captain Stevens) will be given, one of the first public exhibitions of this nature ever held.

After the night photography there will be a little act by Lieut. Corkille entitled "fireflies," which is something of a mystery. Another act equally shrouded in secrecy and entitled "the flying rocket," will be produced by Capt. Street and Lieut. Brookley, and then toward the end of the carnival will be an illuminated smoke screen, an exhibition never seen at night in this part of the country. Perhaps it will look a little bit like Niagara Falls illuminated at midnight, but in any case it will be something new and novel.

Visitors will have the opportunity to see some of the largest type airplanes built for the army tearing through the air at speeds of 200 miles an hour. There will be mighty bombers of 1,400 horse power carrying their loads and "doing motored planes and little airplanes their stuff," and in addition, multi-seater more than toys.

Not only will visitors be highly entertained but they will be afforded an insight into some of the vital factors contributing toward the general preparedness of the nation.

An admission of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students from 12 to 19 years old will be charged, the proceeds of which will be used in welfare work among the members of the personnel of the two fields and for the army relief fund. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

SPRINGFIELD GIRL WEDS YELLOW SPRINGS MAN.

Miss Lillian Hern, S. Limestone St., Springfield and Mr. George Baker of Yellow Springs were united in marriage before an altar banked with palms and gladioli at St. Raphael Church, Springfield at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning. The Rev. Fr. Msgr. D. A. Buckley read the nuptial mass.

Music was furnished by Prof. Matthew Horen, organist and members of the choir of St. Raphael Church. There were no attendants.

The bride wore a charming gown of blue chiffon, designed of semi-fitted lines with wide skirt and bolero effect. She wore a light beige hat, blue kid slippers to match her frock and light hose and gloves. She carried a corsage of roses and sweet peas.

Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to fifteen guests at the bride's home. The centerpiece for the beautifully arranged table was a large wedding cake and bowls of flowers were at either end. Later in the day Mr. and Mrs. Baker left for a honeymoon trip to Georgetown, Ky. They will be at home to their many friends after June 9 in Yellow Springs, where Mr. Baker has business interests.

SHOW GOES ON

It is a practiced tradition of the stage that whatever happens "the show must go on."

The clown swallows his personal sorrow and carries on in the best tradition of his profession, to make others laugh while his own heart is broken.

And so patrons of Gentry Bros. circus who saw Jerry Martin, aerialist, entertain with startling stunts at the afternoon and evening performances of the circus here Monday, did not realize that his professional smile masked a leaden heart.

Martin received word Monday that his father had died in Manchester, N. H. Hundreds of people were crowding the show grounds expecting to be amused. They were entitled to a full performance. "The show must go on." Mr. and Mrs. Martin wired flowers for his father's bier and a few minutes later Martin was delighting the afternoon circus crowd with his antics.

was held and the first prize went to Mr. R. A. Braxton, second prize to Mrs. A. R. Fox, and the booby prize to Mrs. Anna Morgan. Delightful refreshments were served by the host and hostesses.

Richard Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scott, E. Second St., who was seriously burned Sunday afternoon when his clothing caught fire, remains the same.

Word was received here Tuesday by Undertaker J. C. Johnson, of the death of Maurice Thomas, former Xenian, at his home in Blughampton, N. Y., suddenly last Wednesday.

Mr. Thomas is survived by two brothers, Nelson of New York and Charles of Xenia.

Funeral services were held at the residence Friday and burial was made in New York.

Mrs. Florence Corbett has returned to Chicago after spending two weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer White, E. Second St.

Mr. Frank Campbell and family have returned to Detroit, Mich., after spending the week-end with his mother, Mrs. Jennie White, E. Second St.

Why can't I get real white clothes from my new washer?

In our demonstrations, Mrs. Brown, I always use Rinsol. Do you know why? Because Rinsol washes clothes so white—women are amazed. "You try Rinsol in your new washer. You never saw such whiteness! It's the rich, soapy suds that do it."

For tub washing, too The makers of 38 washers recommend Rinsol. Great for tub washing, too. Soaks out dirt—saves scrubbing, boiling. That saves the clothes!

In hardest water, Rinsol suds are creamy, lasting. And Rinsol is all you need—no bar soaps, chips, powders, softeners. It goes twice as far as puffed-up soaps.

Get the BIG package. You'll like Rinsol for dishes, too.

MILLIONS USE RINSOL in tub, washer and dishpan

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE LOVE OF CHRIST—For the love of Christ constraineth us; because we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead; and that he died for all, that they which live should not henceforth live unto themselves, but unto him which died for them, and rose again.—2 Cor. 5:14, 15.

THE GOLD STAR MESSAGE

Those gold star mothers, now visiting France are doing something besides satisfying their own desires for a sight of the spot consecrated by their loved ones lost in the World War. They are also carrying a message of national friendship and desire for peace.

As these women meet the French people and compare views, so far as differences in language permit, the thought uppermost is not of getting ready for any new war. It is a thought of the utter needlessness of wars, the failure of wars to accomplish any useful results, and the urgent call upon the world to find measures by which the war spirit can be controlled.

Up to a recent date wars were regarded as a necessary and inevitable form of human activity. It was considered about as futile to try to prevent wars, as to attempt to remedy evils caused by weather and climate. The thing to do was for a nation to resign itself to the inevitable pugnacity of human nature, and prepare thoroughly for such conflict.

When people were formerly sweptdown by small pox and other plagues, old fashioned opinion said it was an inevitable calamity, or a visitation of God, and they just yielded to fate. But the scientists got after these evils, and by better medical treatment, they have mostly banished the dangers of such diseases.

It is the same with the mental diseases that causes wars. It is to be averted in two ways. First, by well constructed legislation and treaties providing peaceful settlement of disputes. Second, by friendship between nations. The Gold Star mothers are doing wonderful work along the latter line. Every French foreign heart that they meet must be touched by their sorrow and their sacrifice, and desire to do all in its power that such suffering shall not occur again.

VALUE OF A DEGREE

As the college graduation season comes on, many thousands of these graduates feel very proud to have won the scholastic degrees which signify the completion of certain courses of study. The meaning of these degrees, however, has radically changed and many people have a mistaken idea of their value.

When the custom of giving learned degrees was first instituted by the medieval universities, the students lived a life of pure scholastic seclusion. They loved learning for its own sake. They endured great hardships, suffered from poverty, were often poorly fed, in order that they might acquire the wisdom of the world. They had nothing that we could consider normal sports and pastimes.

Today a host of young men and women attempt to take these courses who care little for study and have no literary tastes. They endure no hardships, on the contrary most of them are luxuriously supported, and devote a large part of their energy to sports. They value their scholastic degrees, not as triumphs of scholarly attainment, but because they think the possession of these honors will help them earn more money.

Many of these young folks have spent their years of study in semi-idleness and student amusements. Some of them are no more fitted for the world than if they had gone to work four years before. There seems a certain inappropriateness in conferring degrees of scholastic achievement on them.

Meanwhile we should all honor those many students in Ohio who have conformed to the ideals of scholarship, who have tried to perform their tasks faithfully, and to profit by the great advantages education offers to them. Their degrees are well earned, and they have a right to be proud of them.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

THE BIBLE AS GOOD WRITING

"That the Bible is the chief glory of English prose has never been denied—not even by those who do not accept the living faith set forth therein. The agnostic has its haunting rhythms by heart and at heart; having the beauty of holiness as well as the beauty of memorial, they unsensibly persuade him to revere the Christian virtues, even though he rejects Christianity."

The foregoing is part of an able editorial in the London Morning Post. The Bible referred to is the old Authorized Version, translated by poets, and a thing of everlasting beauty. They are not simply old-fashioned folks who find no glory, no comfort, and no substance of faith in the new-fangled translations of the Bible into modern language. All those who love literature at its best, who love art and beauty, do not wish to see this book written like a twentieth century novel or a magazine article.

WOMEN BUYERS

Women buy 64 per cent of the men's neckwear worn in America—and they buy 75 per cent of the men's socks. No wonder new statistics declare that women will spend 40 billion dollars in the year 1930. Who says this isn't going to be a good year before we get through—good for the women who have the fun of buying anyway? But men ought not to complain. Few of them do. For women buy more closely, more intelligently, and have better taste than men. If all men bought their own neckties and socks, to say nothing of shirts and such, it might be just as comfortable a world, but it would look terrible.

ART DISTRIBUTED

No doubt about art in America or artistic development in this western world. But the most interesting thing now is to contemplate the next step or rather the step which we are already taking. Art, through the sensible ability of teachers of design, is now being wedded with industry. Art is coming into the kitchen, into the factory. As somebody has said, art has come to the dishpan, the washstand, and the mop. And is not all life and material the province of art? Why shy at machine production? Things made rapidly by machinery can be just as beautiful, just as artistic as things made slowly by hand. It's the most hopeful sign of the age—art co-operating with industry.

THE FRUITS OF RELIGION

There are signs that we are becoming less interested in differences of doctrine and more interested in the fruits of religion. What are the fruits of religion? Speaking of boys, they are fair play, team work, good sportsmanship.

How many United States troops were engaged in the World War? The war department informs us that there were 4,057,101 soldiers in the United States armies during the World War. This number was composed of 545,773 regulars, 617,275 volunteers and 2,894,053 draftees.

Postal Deficiencies
Does the postoffice department operate at a profit? The postoffice department shows a huge deficit each year. In 1927 the government had to make up a deficiency of $27,263,000, and in 1928 a deficiency of $32,080,000.

Wood By the Cord
What size tree will yield a cord of wood? One northern hardwood tree of any variety, 21 inches in diameter, 5 feet above the ground, will yield one cord of wood. A southern softwood tree, 23 inches in diameter, will yield a cord of wood.

Dead Man's Float
What is a "Dead Man's Float"? It is a means of floating on the water. Upon entering the water, extend the arms over the head, bend forward and, with a slight shove, life the feet off the bottom. This is completely described in "Swimming," a pamphlet you may obtain by following column instructions below.

NOTE: The following pamphlets may be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope for each, to Central Press Bureau, P. O. Box 126, Washington, D. C.: "Who's Who in Hollywood," "Seeing Washington," and Charles P. Stewart's treatise on "Our Government."

CONSCIENCE.

NEW YORK CITY, New York—Mysterious gifts pour into the Conscience Fund of this city. It now has to its credit the largest amount in its history. New Yorkers who have repented of their sins are showering dollars into the till, and $3,062 has been received since January of the present year. Duncan MacInnes has had a charge of the fund for 33 years and says it existed 37 years before he took hold. The greatest windfall ever received was when someone slipped into the office and left two $1,000 bills lying on the desk. Another time he received a check for $3,751.75 from Santa Fe, N. M., and it cost the city $4.83 in telegrams to find it was bogus.

It seems New York has a conscience—but most of the time it is put away in camphor.

HAIR THEIR PLACE.

Obscenity is not in the printed word, but in the mind of the reader. Mrs. Mary Ware Dennett, white-haired author of "The Sex Side of Life" told the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice.

"Suppression of Vice" seems to me the worst of a familiar ring. I hear it echoing down through the ages in the time of that famous stoning even when the Nazarene said something about "he who is without sin."

Don't jump too hard on the poor old successors to Comstock—they're great advertisers for a book.

AFTERMATH.

The practice of printing sensational stories about celebrities, who have figured in the news, after they are dead, is to have it test in court. Mrs. Julia Sullivan Eagles, mother of the late Jeanne Eagles, stage star, whose death attracted considerable attention, has applied to the court for an injunction restraining Liberty Magazine from printing a life story of the actress.

Five issues of the story are already on the press, it is said, and it will cost the publishers $1,000,000 if the suit is decided against them.

Jeanne Eagles lived her life and paid the penalty. It's not pleasant for a mother to see it all raked up after her daughter's death.

THE SENIOR HOP

HEAD OF CAMPAIGN FUND COMMITTEE ADVOCATES THAT GOVERNMENT PAY ELECTION EXPENSES OF CANDIDATES

By CHARLES P. STEWART

(The fourth and last of a series on campaign fund investigations.)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—"The solution of the problem of political campaign expenditures appears to me," says Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate committee on investigation of the cost of this year's primary and election fights for U. S. senate seats, "to lie in the payment of all such expenses by the government."

Which would mean (would it not?) a perfect swarm of irresponsible candidates in every primary—considering that it would cost nothing to have at least one try for every conceivable nomination.

The English system, however, provides a safeguard against this nuisance. Each aspirant for honors at the polls is required to make a substantial cash deposit, in order to have his name placed on the official ballot. If he receives a certain specified number of votes his money is returned to him; otherwise it is assumed that he ought to have known better than to intrude himself into the contest and his stake goes into the public treasury.

They say it has a discouraging effect upon wild-cat candidates.

As an alternative, Senator Nye suggests a pre-primary primary—with a low maximum expense account limit—say two or three hundred dollars—enough to keep out the pure pests who otherwise always would run, but not enough to bar serious entrants from participation in the weeds-out contest.

"With the field thus narrowed," continued the North Dakotan, "there need be no further expenditure of a cent by any candidate, or any friend of any candidate, during the primary or the election campaign period."

"I see no other prospect of checking the present steady spread in the corruption of the electorate."

"With every fresh outcry against it, with nominal restrictions constantly being tightened, with a fresh investigation following or accompanying every primary and every election, with scandal ensuing after scandal, the figures continue to mount higher and higher."

"Such sums as were 'condemned and disapproved' less than a decade ago, in the case of Truman Newberry, now sound quite moderate."

"Perhaps, with private expenditures maintained at all, excesses are, in a sense, unavoidable."

"One candidate spends money lavishly; the other candidate feels that he has no choice but to be equally or even more free-handed, or make up his mind to be beaten."

"Nor do investigations, probably, by any means reveal the sum total of the actual cost of up-to-date primaries and elections. They show the candidate's officially-recognized expenditures. But what of his friends' expenditures?—in his interest?"

The senator tapped with his finger on a stack of vouchers, half a foot thick, on the desk in front of him—the record of one candidate's expenses in the recent Illinois primaries.

They represent a quarter of a million dollars' worth of political activity.

"And yet," said the North Dakotan, "there are nine Illinois counties unaccounted for in that sheaf of papers—nine counties in which it appears this candidate spent no money."

"One of those nine counties is Cook county—Chicago which casts hard onto half the vote of the states in which it is situated.

"I don't doubt the statement's technical accuracy."

"The candidate having reported no Cook county expenditures, I am prepared to believe that the candidate spent none there—but hardly that none was spent there, by someone, to promote that candidate's primary chances."

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

WARY-WING, HERSELF

Never before, nor after, in his life did Peter wish to run away so badly as he did at that moment. It was not that he was afraid of Wary-Wing, but he hated to tell her the bad news. He didn't believe Wary-Wing would believe anything he said, anyhow. Certainly she would never forgive him for what he had done. But he couldn't run, it was too late. So he stood still.

Straight towards him Wary-Wing flew. Yet not a bit of attention did she pay to the boy, and Peter was surprised to find her flying over his head.

"Oh, Wary-Wing, stop a moment! I've bad news for you!"

"Well, of all the crazy things to do!" muttered Brown Beetle under his breath. "Why didn't you tell well enough alone, and if Wary-Wing was flying by, allow her to do so."

If ever there was an astonished Mosquito, it was Wary-Wing. Flitting in circles, at last she dropped earthward and alighted on a bit of chickeny weed.

"Who are you, and what do you want?" demanded Wary-Wing, and then, for the first time, noticed the still body of her sister.

"What's this, what's this?" shrilled she, at once flying into a regular mosquito tempo. "How did this happen? Just a few moments ago my dear sister was well and happy, and now I find her so!"

"Something tells me she will never again flit in the sunshine!"

"Nor make herself generally disagreeable!" to save his neck, Brown Beetle could not help remarking.

Next: "Friendly Eye-witness."

GOOD LUNCHEON SALAD

BANANA SALAD

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)

Six small bananas, peanut butter, mayonnaise dressing. Peel bananas, cut in half lengthwise. Spread one layer of the banana with peanut butter and cover with the other layer. Place the whole banana, or half of it, in a bed of lettuce. Garnish with a spoonful of mayonnaise dressing.

Mayonnaise dressing—One-half teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one-eighth teaspoon paprika, one egg yolk, two tablespoons vinegar, one cup olive oil. Mix the mustard, salt, pepper and paprika. Add egg yolk and mix well. Add one tablespoon vinegar. Add oil gradually, beating constantly with an egg beater or silver fork. As mixture thickens, add remainder of vinegar.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

By MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

Lamb Pies
Lettuce and Green Onion Salad
Strawberry Pie
Iced Tea or Coffee

One hot dish is enough for a warm night's dinner. The lamb pies include meat and vegetables and will use up the roast left from Sunday or another dinner.

Today's Recipes

Lamb Pies—Two cups lamb, chopped or diced; one cup potato, diced; one-fourth cup carrots, diced; one-half cup green peas, two cups lamb stock or gravy, one small onion, chopped; two tablespoons catsup or chili sauce; three tablespoons fat; salt and pepper flour. Use left-over cooked lamb.

Cube meat and brown, together with the onion, in two tablespoons of fat. Add vegetables, which have either been left over or freshly cooked; then add thickened stock or gravy with seasonings. Cook 10 minutes, or until meat is thoroughly heated. Pour mixture into individual baking dishes or casseroles, cover tops with pastry or biscuit dough and bake in a hot oven until dough is well done and light brown in color, about 20 to 25 minutes, at 450 degrees F. Biscuit dough will take somewhat longer to bake than pastry. Serve pies hot in the same dishes in which they are baked.

Strawberry Pie—Four tablespoons butter, one-half cup sugar, one egg, one teaspoon vanilla, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one and one-half cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, three cups berries, washed and hulled; one-third cup sugar, one cup whipped cream. Cream butter and half cup of sugar. Add egg, milk, vanilla, salt, flour, baking powder, and beat three minutes. Pour in round cake pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 25 minutes in moderately slow oven. Turn out and let cool. Spread top with berries mixed with third of a cup of sugar. Cover with whipped cream. Serve with fork.

Suggestions

Family Washing
Here is a list of the smaller items needed for good laundry work:

Miscellaneous—Fourteen or 16-quart pail dipper, quart cup, saucepan for starch, rubberized apron, clothes stick, clothesline and pins, adhesive tape for repairing electric cords, knife, large wooden spoon.

Supplies—White soap or flakes, laundry soap, flakes or powders, bleaching agents, starch, bluing, ironing wax.

A closet for holding all these things is most helpful. A folding table with oilcloth cover makes a convenient working surface for removing stains, for sprinkling the clothes and for holding the ironed garments.

Beverage Sets

It's time to get out the iced tea pitcher and glasses. Cooling drinks served on hot days are a thirst quencher. Trays are another hot weather piece of equipment which will add to informal meals.

The iced tea spoons come in cunning shapes, and in many different colors.

EXERCISING FREES NECK OF WRINKLES

Avoiding Wrinkles While Reducing
"Dear Doctor: I am so happy about my state of health now that I must write you. Just a year ago I sent for your Petersizing pamphlet. I weighed 155 am 5 feet 4 inches tall; I couldn't do my housework any more, was so tired all the time, and had indigestion and constipation. Now I am down to 134, and am not tired and can do all my work easily; can even run a quarter mile without tiring."

"I want to tell you I took no medicine, either. I took some neck exercises and that kept my neck and face firm."
MRS. P.

I just finished answering a girl who lost 80 pounds. E. so your 21 pounds seems a trifle, doesn't it? But, in reality, a loss of only 10 pounds makes a great difference in the appearance and in health, too, so I congratulate you. And anyone who has 10 pounds in excess is very wise to reduce it, because after beginning to gain, one usually gains a little bit more each year.

The Tummy Ten exercises, by the way, exercise the neck muscles quite vigorously. Then special neck exercises can be taken: twisting the head from side to side, as far as possible, and stretching the head up and down, etc.

How do we hate a wrinkled neck! It can be avoided by the slow reduction and exercise.

Those who need instructions may have our Petersizing pamphlet and the article on the Tummy Ten by following column rules.

T.—No one is really immune to smallpox, unless he has had the disease already and so has been successfully vaccinated, so far as I know. Yes, one case can start an epidemic, and it has, many times.

No, it is NOT true that smallpox affects only those who are syphilitic.

Yes, it is true that diseased tonsils cause disease elsewhere in the body, especially acute rheumatism and heart disease. It is the normal, healthy, tonsils, only, that destroy the germs.

"Dear Doctor: I wrote to you before, but you didn't answer my question. If you knew how much it meant to me, you would answer. I am a girl 16 and weigh 128. Every body tells me I would have a good figure if it weren't for my bust—I am so flat chested. How can I develop it?"
JACKIE.

Forgive me, Jackie, for not answering your letter before. Remember, I get millions of questions and only a few can be answered in the column, and only those of general interest. And if I have recently written on the subject, I have to omit the question.

There is nothing you can do to develop your bust, dear girl. You can develop your chest and chest muscles, though, so that you won't look so flat. Remember that the normal bust is not large. And the bust you're only 16 and it will probably develop as you get older.

We have an article on the Tummy Ten which will help you to develop your muscles. See column rules.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following small charge to help cover cost of printing and handling: for each article wanted two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters in care of this paper. Write legibly, and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Virginia Lee: I am a constant reader of your column. Think your advice wonderful."

"I am a young man, 26, going with a girl about my age, whom I love very much. She doesn't live here, but we correspond, about two letters a week."

"I think she is true to me, but I am not to her. I am planning a trip away, going to take another girl with me. Should I do these things? I go to see my girl, leave her early, go out on wild parties, tell her I don't feel well. She believes me."

"I often wish I could have the pleasure of meeting 'Unkissable,' as I think she could be easily broken in. Never met one I couldn't tame yet, but I glory in her spunk, more power to her! If she don't weaken. Now, Virginia Lee, do you think it is all right to take these trips? I have always thought we weren't young but once."

"But I do take a lot of good things too. There's no one depending on me, so I give quite a lot away."

"GLENDALE"

Of course, you may "get away" with it, all right, Glendale. The girl friend may never suspect that you lie to her and go on these trips with other girls. But whether she does or not, how would you feel if you suddenly found out that she did the same? Quite a blow, wouldn't it be, if you discovered that she sent you home early and went out with other fellows on wild parties and that she took trips away with others?

You'd probably never trust her again. And another thing, you would be afraid she would ruin her health as well as morals, wouldn't you? I'm a great believer in the single standard of morals. There is no reason why a man should lead a wild life and expect to marry a sweet, true girl, than that a girl should do likewise and expect to marry a man who is pure and straight.

I, too, believe in young folks having a good time, and I also believe in middle aged and young folks having gay times, but I'd feel something was wrong with my makeup if I could have a good time while I was deceiving those whom I loved and who loved me. I'm strong for "square guys," male or female.

As to the little girl who signed herself "Unkissable," she'll doubtless "weaken," as you say, when she meets a man who wooes her and makes her love him. And I hope, oh, so much, that it won't be one of your double-crossers. Don't you?

I'm glad that you are liberal with your money, but I've noticed that a good many people of loose morals are too. Money doesn't mean much to them. It comes easily and goes the same way. They often have "good hearts." But a wife who has a free spending husband may get the heartache just the same when she knows that she can't believe his word or depend on him to be true to her.

Generally speaking, I cannot advise the girls how to win their lovers back. When love grows cold one might better expend her energies on facing the future courageously and in finding new interests, for it seldom returns.

But when there is a home and children to consider, I counsel women usually to hold on to the home and to be patient with the erring husband, for these two things—home and children—are strong ties to pull him back.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

BATHE OFTEN TO MAINTAIN YOUR BEAUTY

Frequent baths are the surest safeguard of personal cleanliness and immaculateness. Innumerable times I have said—and I'm new to it—stop dining it into women's ears—that the bath is the greatest beauty aid.

For the warm days your bath water should be tepid. Avoid the hot bath. It is much more enervating in warm weather than in winter.

And make the bath enjoyable. Add to the bath water a few drops of perfume or use the scented bath salts that are so inexpensive, and yet so greatly enhance the stimulating and refreshing qualities of the bath. However, use only enough of the perfume to give a faint, delicate fragrance to the bath. It is disagreeable and offensive to be obliged to sit or to be near a woman from whom emanates an odor of cheap perfume, so reminiscent of a soap counter in a drug store.

LANGS DEFEAT GRAHAM PAINTS WITH HEAVY STICK WORK 21 TO 13

Graham Paints and the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball teams put on the well known David and Goliath act Monday night at Cox Athletic Field but it didn't work out like history records it should.

Essaying the role of David, Langs failed in an attempt to put the first blemish on the spotless record of the Lang nine, the final score was 21 to 13 and the contest was a struggle for survival of the fittest.

The victory gives Langs the undisputed leadership of the National League with three wins and no defeats. The Lang nine is now the only unbeaten team in either league.

The setback was also the initial reverse for Grams, giving the team a 500 rating in the percentage column.

The Graham-Lang combat was one of the most wild-eyed of the season. The two teams between them collected forty-two hits, establishing what is probably a record for the season. Of this number...

CIRCUS ENJOYED BY XENIANS MONDAY AT TWO PERFORMANCES

A trained seal astounding in its astuteness and its ability, a number of pretty, performing horses, a first-class group of amusing clowns who were willing to work hard, some well-trained elephants, aerialists and tumblers made the Gentry Bros. Circus, which played afternoon and evening performances at the Ringier show grounds, Cincinnati Ave., Monday, a delightful entertainment for Xenia's circus-starved population.

Of these perhaps the trained seal drew the most applause as he went through his acts with uncanny intelligence and applauded himself by flapping his flippers together to the amusement of the crowd. Gentry Bros. had especially appeal for children because of the important use it makes of its clowns, who introduced many bright and entertaining stunts. The circus uses three rings, but, unlike the larger shows, the rings were worked in sequence usually, so that the audience missed none of the performance.

The circus came to Xenia from Minister, where it played Sunday and went from here to Wilmington where it played an engagement Tuesday. It travels by motor truck.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, N. Y., June 3.—Most sections of the stock market drifted to lower price levels today, in the absence of any sustained buying demand from either speculative or investment quarters.

Expectations of another decrease in unfilled tonnage to be shown in report next Tuesday was used by the professionals for moderate short selling of the stock which dropped off 1-4 to 171 3-4. Continental Baking class A and preferred lost about 4 points each, Air Reduction slumped 4 points, Chrysler Motor reached a new low on the move at 33 7-8, down 1-2. Westinghouse lost 2 points and Radio 1 3-4.

American Steel Foundries and McKeesport Tin moved up 2 points each behind a small buying wave. The cotton market sagged about 50 cents a bale; silver hit another new low, slumping to 35 cents an ounce. Preliminary surveys of the steel markets show a further softening of prices for scrap as well as for bar and shapes.

In giant washtubs Sohio Motor Oil is cleansed of hidden impurities . . . to give it controlled viscosity

Towering against the sky at the Standard Oil Company refineries in Cleveland, stands a great battery of these specially constructed "washtubs". Here Sohio Motor Oil is scientifically washed and rinsed with cleansing chemicals to remove carbon-forming impurities.

It is by such painstaking methods . . . a long series of them . . . that Standard of Ohio's lubrication engineers are able to secure definite control of every element composing the viscosity, or "Body" of New Sohio Motor Oil. Purity, toughness, flexibility, smoothness . . . all these desirable qualities are skillfully combined . . . each given its rightful importance. The result is a lubricant of remarkable coordinated strength.

So, "Controlled Viscosity" is your assurance that, summer or winter, you will get these advantages:

TOUGH BODY—stands up under the strain and heat of modern high-speed motor operation.

FLEXIBLE BODY—positive lubrication in summer heat or winter cold.

SMOOTH BODY—an oilier oil, free from non-lubricating wax . . . provides perfect piston seal and prevents loss of power.

PURE BODY—contains the very minimum of carbon-forming elements.

Make a real test of this modern oil in your motor. You'll be delighted with the results after you've drained out the old and put in a fresh crankcase-full of New Sohio Motor Oil . . . wherever you see the Red-White-and-Blue Sohio signs, and you see them everywhere in Ohio.

The American Kitchen and Electric Refrigeration

---The Modern Convenience

Electricity is conceded to be nature's greatest contribution toward the elimination of drudgery.

"Electric power is reducing the burden of human toil," Herbert Hoover once said. And this may be applied to our greatest institution, the American Kitchen.

Electricity has been applied successfully to every household task, minimizing the labor and giving more leisure hours to the homemaker.

The newest convenience in this Great American Kitchen is the electric refrigerator. A realization of the necessity for a dependable means of refrigeration has swept the country. Government health authorities and refrigerator manufacturers have impressed upon the public the dangers lurking in spoiled foods. The electric refrigerator is the most satisfactory solution to the problem of food preservation. A constant temperature of less than 50 degrees is maintained automatically, and the food kept in an electric refrigerator will remain fresh and wholesome for days.

Although electric refrigeration, ever since its inception, offered a solution to the problem of keeping food wholesome, until recently it was considered a luxury by many.

People thought that only the wealthy could afford electric refrigerators. This attitude has changed. Every family realizes the value of proper food preservation and its relation to health. Because of this realization, 468,000 electric refrigerators were sold in 1928, representing an amount of $128,700,000, as against 365,000 electric refrigerators for 1927, which represented a total of $82,125,000 according to figures compiled by the Electrical Merchandising magazine.

Electric refrigeration is designed to play the part of servant in addition to that of health keeper. Only 6 per cent of the country's 27,300,000 homes employ servants. The majority of housewives do their kitchen tasks unassisted. With electric refrigeration the daily seven miles traced on the kitchen floor is reduced to a minimum. The electric refrigerator, range and kitchen cabinet are conveniently arranged for combined beauty and efficiency.

Meals can be planned in advance and the ingredients stored safely in the electric refrigerator. Vegetables and fruits can be bought at economical prices, and none is wasted if kept at the proper cold temperature.

BUILD NOW

There is no substitute for a home. The establishment of a home is the end and aim of our whole society. It is the heart string of our existence. Every citizen that society has set up to promote better living and the well-being of humanity centers around the home. All the safeguards of nature, even, are thrown around the family unit.

And no family can really be secure, can ever have that freedom we all aspire to achieve, until the home has been won. It comes first, because it is of the greatest importance.

There is a magic in the ownership of a home that is not found in the ownership of any other thing in the wide world. The quality that flows out of the ownership of a home is truly spiritual, because the home represents the finest and best aspirations of human kind. It is the old nest—the nest we have built in which to rear and to shelter our loved ones. It is our citadel of faith and happiness. It is here that our family withdraws from the world unto itself; it is here, and here only, that we have a chance to keep to ourselves the background of our lives together; here, and here only, that we can wholly and completely work out our individuality. It is ours, ours! We are not dividing the roof over our heads with anyone else. No one in the whole wide world can tell us when to move on!

Build that home now! Do not hesitate another day; you have every financial advantage in your favor—more in your favor than at any time in ten years. All the other advantages are present too. They have not changed in this spring of 1930. They are more necessary than ever before, for, as Ludington Patton, a hard-headed business man, vice president Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company, says: "Home ownership is an assurance of American stability and human happiness."

We are not interested, as Mr. Hoover has said so many times, in building an economic system in this country. "Our purpose is to build in this nation a human society—its final purpose is happier homes. We shall succeed through the faith, the loyalty, the self-sacrifice, the devotion to eternal ideals which live today in every American."

And the greatest ideal, the strongest instinct, within all of us is a home of our own, because it represents all the finest and best aspirations any of us can have.

DICKERSON WINS IOWA NOMINATION

DES MOINES, June 3.—Congressman L. J. Dickinson of Algonquin, in November will oppose the only Democratic senator Iowa has had since the Civil War, as a result of his nomination by the Republican party as United States senator in Iowa's primary election.

Today Dickinson's lead over Governor John Hammill, his nearest opponent, had mounted to more than 50,000 votes and it was freely predicted that when complete returns have been tabulated the victor's margin will be more than $0,000.

Dan W. Turner of Corning was nominated for governor by the Republicans over Secretary of State Ed Smith. His lead was more than two to one with half the state's 2,433 precincts heard from. It is believed Turner's margin will mount to 100,000 with the final tabulations.

Warner Bros. are apparently making a revolutionary statement in their announcement that they are willing to buy original scripts for scenarios and ideas for scenarios. Several years ago this was the accepted way of getting stories for pictures and it was successful because in the old days of silent pictures, it required no literary ability or training to be able to prepare a scenario.

Street car conductors, telephone operators and even newspaper reporters, won fame and money as scribes for the films. Then the market became glutted, the demand for better stories made it necessary to buy first-class best-selling novels and, finally, the talkies knocked the scenario writing business into a cocked hat.

However, just when it seemed dead, Warner Bros. make their astounding offer. It is extended to newspaper reporters but perhaps no harm will be done to advertise to readers. Their letter follows:

"For years reporters have threatened to write the 'great American movie.' Here is their chance. 'Warner Bros., producers of Vitaphone pictures, are willing to buy original scripts and ideas for same. 'All scenarios, and ideas for same, which we find acceptable will be paid for on acceptance. We are in the market for new material—and we believe that the newspaperman can develop something new. A clipping from an exchange, an item in a yarn, may possibly serve as their basis for a scenario. 'Scripts and ideas for same, should be addressed to Story Dept., Warner Bros., 321 W. 44th St., New York City. The time limit for sending in material expires November 22, 1930.

Dr. Bruce MacCall Harrison of the University of Southern California will spend the summer in the interior of Borneo on a scientific expedition sponsored jointly by the university and Universal Pictures. Dr. Harrison leaves June 5. He expects to photograph the natural movements and sounds of the

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

READ THIS FIRST:

Clara Dee Forester is the motherless, only daughter of a millionaire. She has lived a petted, pampered life of idle extravagance. Disgusted with the wealthy young, her father left her one dollar at his death, hoping that some quality in her would respond to the situation and make her a successful woman. She goes to Mrs. Flynn's boarding house to live, and has made little progress when she attends a party at Ivan Moreau's studio and decides to model for him.

Ivan learns that Clara Dee has a philosophy quite different from his own. Winfield disapproves of her work, but she starts to night school and tells no one except Mrs. Flynn. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

She ran to her dressing room and took off the Spanish costume she was wearing, with shaking fingers. She had surprised herself with her replies to his arguments. The necessity which the occasion demanded, perhaps, for fear that Ivan should win over to his professed beliefs, had prompted her clever defense. Meeting Ivan's subtle advances, was a duel with swords rather than a scabrous game of chess, as compared with her flirtations with youths of her former gay existence, or the careless mockery with which she laughed at the glowing admiration of older men she had known. Besides, her very existence was at stake in this instance.

But those weeks at Mrs. Flynn's had indeed fired and sifted the slag from the pure metal of her character. Though she could now afford to live in a more expensive place, she stayed on at Mrs. Flynn's and paid her ten dollars a week. Somehow, she felt it wouldn't be just fair to the dear old lady, who had been so generous when she was needy, to leave her now just because she had a little more money. Two months ago, Clara Dee Forester would have scoffed at such sentiment. But then, she had never before needed friends. And, in spite of Ivan's kind and generous attitude toward her, she didn't trust him, somehow, but feared that she would eventually appreciate one more the refuge of mother Flynn's arms and shelter. She had not smoked nor had a drink for weeks. Those days of actual want for physical comfort, the long hours of labor, which made her suffer genuine fatigue, had shown her the folly of such practices. Idleness, desire for new thrills and excitement, something different enough to be shocking—all these were the causes of those repulsive habits. Repulsive to her now, because she had found that life could be sufficiently full of excitement, anxiety and thrilling experience, itself.

When Mrs. Flynn was informed of her new position, she shook her head doubtfully, but found some comfort in the fact that she now understood Clara Dee, as possibly no one else did. Her quaint expression did not escape Clara Dee. Neither did the steady glint in Winfield's eyes, when he was informed of her new occupation.

"Haven't you changed your hours?" he asked her one evening, as they left the dining room together.

"Oh, yes! Didn't you know that I'm not at the Star any more? I'm a model for Ivan Moreau, now."

"For Ivan Moreau—surely not!" his jaw dropped with disapproval and unbelief.

"Surely yes! Why not? I love the work and he is very considerate. You objected to my other work as being too hard. And this is certainly very much easier. He says I'm really doing my duty to the world—to let him reproduce my beauty for the pleasure of others."

"I dare say—sounds like one of Moreau's arguments." He stared straight ahead and his words hissed as if he were clenching his teeth.

"Why! do you know him?" she caught him off guard.

"Not personally, but I've heard enough of him!" hastily.

"Of course, you hear a lot about him. All famous people make enemies as they make friends. It is just envy. All people envy success—and jealousy makes enemies," she defended him.

"I grant that, but he is even severely criticized by successful men," stubbornly.

"Yes, because they can't get away with what he can. Then will he take as much as they dare and if they have no reason to covet his professional success, they do envy the tact with which he manages that women. But even his powers are limited, insofar as the women choose to be managed," she added significantly.

He was moodily silent for a moment. Then his face brightened. "Forgive me if I made a rude implication. It's—well, it's just that I dislike to think of your working at all. You were born to be a lady, to be served and amused by others."

Now, why did he say that, she wondered with instant alarm, then decided quickly that all men spoke thus protectively to the women they adored. Even Ivan had intimated the same concern for her.

"You are decidedly wrong there!" she declared saucily. "I should never enjoy such an idle existence"—to herself, she added—"again."

Estelle was greatly amused when she heard that Clara Dee had refused to pose "as is" for Ivan.

"You'll get over your modesty soon, dearie. What's the harm, anyway? I'd rather they got the results natural than let them imagine what my figure is, and make it look like a peasant woman's."

"Well, that's different," Clara Dee agreed, recalling a recent exhibition of the magnificent statue, "The Sons of God saw the Daughters of Men. That They Were Fair." And such figures as Rodin's "The Kiss" were art that justified their production. "When the results are nude figures, I admit that the models must be the same. But Mr. Moreau's work is different."

"I know," Estelle shrugged, "but he says he'd rather paint the clothes on them. A genius, you know, has the right to be eccentric as he chooses, without being condemned by the critics."

The weeks flew by—chill autumn winds blew, and turned the leaves on the trees in the parks to brilliant hues of crimson and yellow, and Clara Dee revealed once more in the feminine pleasure of selecting clothes with which to replenish her scanty wardrobe. In a way it was even more exciting to shop now than ever before. Her purse was strictly limited—she could not indulge in the creation at bored random—she compared prices, examined the quality of materials; she also had to avoid the more exclusive shops. But she did not care to visit any of the modistes who had known and served her formerly. The longing she found hardest to repress, was for the luxury of just one fur wrap. At times, she wished she might be allowed to choose just one from the priceless collection of sable and minks, which hung in the cold storage vaults, and bore tickets with her name. But that would not be playing the game square, even if she could claim them, she told herself. Had her father wished her to wear the fur coats he had bought, he would have provided a way.

So she bravely put the thought aside and selected a serviceable cloth coat of silver broadcloth. It was very becoming, she knew, though it lacked the distinction afforded by a wrap of choice pelts. She could have had one of cheap fur like most of the working girls flaunted, for the price she paid for the broadcloth, but she disdained to accept cheap imitations—true to her mother's wish. The best of its kind had no substitutes in place of the genuine.

Then she carefully planned that she had enough left from her savings, when her shopping was finished, to pay her tuition at a business school, for she still held her ambition before her. Although she was enjoying her work at the studio and Ivan had been more than pleasantly agreeable and impersonal of late, she still experienced a restless distrust of him, which no amount of friendly comradery on his part could entirely obliterate. If again forced adrift in the treacherous maelstroms of life, she was determined to have an anchor, or at least a buoy on which she could keep above the surface until help arrived. So she enrolled for a course of stenographic and secretary's training, at ten o'clock classes three evenings each week, and studied diligently during her spare hours. She told no one of these activities except Mrs. Flynn and Mr. Gregory and pledged each of them to secrecy.

That motherly soul beamed her approval. "Shore and I'm proud of ye, child! I say it's after bein' a pity that your father can't see ye now. He didn't know his daughter, that he didn't!"

"No, he didn't know me very well," she admitted wistfully. "But neither did I know myself six months ago. Mother Flynn, if I do eventually make success give me one fleeting smile, I shall have only his severe condemnation to thank."

"And your own foin spirit. Don't ye be forgettin' that."

"Nor you, Mother Flynn. How fortunate I was to have been brought to such a good home. Besides, I've only just discovered that I have any spirit—I've always just drifted. I was fortunate that I didn't run aground on a cannibal island," merrily. She was assisting

Mrs. Flynn with the dishes just for the sake of a chat with her. "And ef ye had, ye'd have found some way to escape alive," emphasizing her statement with a vigorous twist of the dish cloth. (TO BE CONTINUED)

DETROIT CLAIMS 1,500,000 FOLKS

DETROIT, June 3—A population of 1,500,000 in Detroit proper and of 2,000,000 in the metropolitan area is expected to be shown when final census figures, now almost complete, are tabulated.

Ten years ago there were 1,088,000 persons in the Metropolitan area and 1,205,000 in the counties of Wayne, Oakland and Macomb. A definite trend to the suburbs is shown in districts the count has already been affirmed.

Look!
THE New WESTINGHOUSE

THE REFRIGERATOR THAT COMBINES ALL 3 OF THESE ESSENTIAL REFINEMENTS..

Made possible by the Compact Efficient Freezing Mechanism developed by Westinghouse Engineers.

Have you seen the New Westinghouse Refrigerator?
If not, you really ought to take the time to look at it. It is worth—if you are the least bit interested in modern kitchen equipment—an hour of your time.

The first thing that will strike you as you approach will be its apparel of beauty... the grace of the cabinet... the deep luster of the porcelain or lacquer-on-steel... the richness of the satin-finish hardware on the doors.

Then, as you come near, and transport it in your mind... as you surely will... to your own kitchen in your own home, you will see that the three Westinghouse refinements are essential to convenience... greater usability.

The low, flat Buffet-Top is so necessary when you are taking dishes out or putting them away. Without it, you must either search about for a place to lay them down or else handle them one at a time. And the Broom-High Legs to make underneath sweeping easy! And the Temperature-Selector to give you absolutely flexible control of freezing speed. You couldn't do without any one of these refinements... and you can't find them all in any other machine.

For Westinghouse has a freezing mechanism which permits the building of a refrigerator that has those requisite features. This mechanism... perfected after twelve years of patient research and experimentation... is a complete innovation. It is decidedly fast freezing and is definitely more efficient and economical.
